The bracelets are a custom design that Nature's Splendour designer/owner Elizabeth Pings created especially for the event. "These are airy, feminine bracelets and the checkerboard cut citrine gives them plenty of sparkle," said Pings. "The mix of delicate sterling silver chain with the golden tones of the pearls and citrines creates a versatile piece of day/evening jewelry that is ideal for layering. And of course the bracelet is lovely on its own as well."

For the Golden Globes Industry Mixer, Pings created 10 of the one-of-a-kind bracelets. She admits this number was a relief after having to pull together 85 pairs of "Sterling Silver and Black Spinel" chandelier earrings for the Official Gift Lounge at the 46th Annual CMA Awards in late October. "While the Golden Globes bracelets were a lot of work, it was nothing compared to wire wrapping over 2,000 gemstones for those earrings," laughed Pings.

Pings is a Graduate Gemologist with a diploma from The Gemological Institute of America. This professional credential allows her to identify both common and unusual gemstones and to determine whether they are natural, synthetic or simulated. She meticulously handcrafts each piece of Nature's Splendour jewelry using traditional hand knotting and wire wrapping techniques. The pieces reflect her desire to create affordable, heirloom quality jewelry that provides an alternative to mass-produced designs.

Pings says her design inspiration comes from the stones themselves, which means no two pieces are exactly alike and can exhibit a range of styles from chunky to minimalist. "I am definitely an eclectic designer and let the gemstones dictate the mood of the piece," noted Pings. "I especially enjoy creating custom pieces and find some of my best work is the result of accommodating customer

She has designed jewelry for Paula Abdul and Kaley Cuoco and as part of a The Artisan Group Stylist Gift Bag initiative, has presented designs to Mandi Line, stylist for ABC Family’s, “Pretty Little Liars” and Dorothy Amos, long time stylist for Jennifer Love Hewitt and costume designer for Lifetime’s “The Client List.”
