

New Pet Laureate for Canna-Cat, the Medical Cannabis for Cats Refined From Hemp

From rescue cat to celebri-cat, Neko promotes the legal hemp supplement that provides her the benefits of medical marijuana, without the THC "high."

SEATTLE, WA, USA, October 30, 2013 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Canna-Cat announces that a new celebrity-cat has been minted with the signing of Neko to a one-year deal as pet laureate for the brand.

In lieu of salary, Neko will donate 25% of all proceeds she generates to animal charity. She will receive a lifetime supply of Canna-Cat and monthly spa visits during her term as pet laureate.

Originally of Japanese descent, Neko was rescued four years ago by Meow Cat Rescue in Kirkland, WA.

Neko suffers from a compromised immune system, which results in frequent flare-ups of feline herpesvirus (FHV), especially when stressed.

Canna-Cat reduces the frequency and intensity of Neko's outbreaks, bolsters her immune system, and reduces her stress and anxiety levels.

Very proud of her Japanese heritage, Neko's favorite celebrity is Ichiro Suzuki and her favorite form of poetry is haiku. "Behold Canna-Cat, a medical cannabis, made from legal hemp," she recited at her coronation.

When anyone purchases Canna-Pet products and mentions Neko, Ichiro, or haiku – our pet laureate will personally send Meow Cat Rescue 25% of the purchase price as a contribution to aid their incredible work.

Neko is preparing her blog at the moment. She is happy to correspond with her fans at neko@canna-cat.com, while her staff prepares her social media presence.

About Canna-Cat Supplements

Canna-Cat supplements were developed by two veterinarians and a cannabis entrepreneur from MIT. They contain refined cannabidiol (CBD) from industrial hemp and provide the health benefits of “medical marijuana” without the THC “high” of marijuana.

Canna-Cat supplements are all natural and completely safe. Sprinkling a tiny measured dose into a pet's food daily will bring observable results in less than a week.

After seventeen years of research and development, and five years of clinical testing, Canna-Cat supplements were released to the public this October. They are legal and available over-the-counter, without a prescription.

Dan Goldfarb, a cannabis entrepreneur and one of the founders of CannaSalus LLC, explains:

“While medical testing continues to confirm the benefits of CBD in humans, we already know it has amazing benefits in small animals, so the time had come to release a supplement specifically for our favorite small animals - our cats and dogs.

Over the past five years in our clinical testing we have observed remarkable benefits for pets with cancer, arthritis, diabetes, digestive issues, chronic pain, nausea, and those receiving palliative care. These benefits are apparent within just a few days.

Over the long-term animals receiving Canna-Pet demonstrated improved vitality and overall health, reduced aggression and anxiety, reduced obesity, and prolonged lifespans.

We also find that Canna-Pet can be used as a supplemental therapy to reduce the side effects and cost of pharmaceuticals being administered to many pets.

Canna-Pet has no adverse side effects and is completely safe. Because it is derived from hemp it is non-psychoactive and legally available over-the-counter, without a prescription.”

The production, testing, and packaging of every supplement is overseen by veterinarians in the USA.

Every spokespet or pet laureate we contract will choose a charitable organization that benefits animals, which will receive 25% of the proceeds from products sold. All spokespets and pet laureates sign morality clauses promising to never get “high” with THC.

We have no relationship with Ichiro Suzuki.
