NEW YORK, NY, USA, January 22, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Dr. Barry L. Jacobson, DMD, FAAPD, (www.949pediatricdentistry.com) a leader in pediatric dentistry and serving the New York area, has announced that he and his partner Dr. Helen Weinberg, Orthodontist, have recently opened a new office at 949 Park Avenue in Manhattan, where he will continue to offer exemplary pediatric dental care services to young patients.

“I am incredibly excited about this new office,” says Dr. Jacobson, “not only because it will allow me to serve new patients, but because it allows my staff and I to offer the latest and best in pediatric dental technologies to my longtime patients as well.”

Dr. Jacobson has become known as New York’s caring child dentist by offering a positive, comfortable, and fun experience for kids. For more than 17 years, Dr. Jacobson has been at the forefront of pediatric dentistry, as a leader in new and innovative ways to treat young people.

“I have always prided myself on offering the latest cutting-edge procedures and treatment options to children,” Dr. Jacobson explains. “In 2000, I was the first pediatric dentist to standardize laser dentistry for children and I am also known for performing the world’s first laser pediatric dental crown procedure without anesthesia.”

According to Dr. Jacobson, his new office, featuring many new state-of-the-art technologies, will help further his reputation as a leader in pediatric dental technologies.
