Syracuse, enters week 14 as the most dominant team in College Basketball with a impressive undefeated record of 21-0, and the current No.1 team in the nation. Senior forward C.J. Fair leads the team in scoring at 17.2 pnts per game, while sophomore F Jerami Grant lead the team in the rebounding department at 7.1 boards a contest.

Junior G Nick Johnson, leads a Arizona team that comes in to week 14 as the No 2 ranked team in NCAA Basketball, and averaging 16.1 points a game. The Wildcats are 21-1 overall and 8-1 in the Pac Ten.

Heading in to week 14 the Shockers are also undefeated at 23-0. Wichita State, is ranked No.4 in the nation and coming off a 66-47 win over the Illinois State Redbirds. 6-8, 218 pound Forward Cleanthony Early, is averaging 16.2 points and 6.5 rebounds, while sophomore G Fred VanVleet leads the team in assist at 5.3 per contest.

If the NBA draft were to take place today players such as Joel Embiid, Jabari Parker, Andrew Wiggins, Marcus Smart and Dante Exum would be the top 5 prospects. Embiid, is not exactly putting up Lew Alcindor numbers in his first season with the Kansas Jayhawks, but the 19 year old has the size, athletic ability and necessary tools to be a force in the National Basketball Association.

Parker, is arguably the most skilled player in all of College Basketball and has been compared to Carmelo Anthony because of his fundamentals on the offensive side of the court and his ability to knock down the Mid-Range jumer with consistency, which seems to be a lost art in basketball.

Andrew Wiggins, was probably the most hyped up player entering the 2013/2014 season and the freshman has delivered as expected, but with a few weaknesses. Wiggins is a freakishly gifted athlete with a remarkable smooth offensive game, and difficult to guard in 1 on 1 situations. In order for the 18 year old to shine at the next level he will need to continue his ball handling skills and limit his turnovers.
