

Xerafy Resolves RFID Patent Infringement Dispute with Omni-ID

Xerafy and Omni-ID have reached an amicable, out-of-court settlement in their intellectual property dispute.

HONG KONG, CHINA, February 6, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Xerafy and Omni-ID have reached an amicable, out-of-court settlement in their intellectual property dispute.

Under the terms of the confidential settlement agreement, Xerafy will continue to manufacture and sell its complete range of RFID tags, including high performance read-on-metal tags, in the U.S. and around the world.

“Xerafy is pleased with how the matter was resolved,” said Xerafy founder and CEO Dennis Khoo. “IP disputes are common with emerging technologies, and we are pleased we could work with Omni-ID to come to a mutually beneficial agreement. We look forward to devoting all our energies to supporting our customers and continuing to develop new RFID products to solve business problems.”

Terms of the settlement are confidential.
