The State Government established the First Home Owner Grant (FHOG) in 2000, to provide a one-off payment to assist first time home buyers in Australia purchase their first home. The recent increase gives participants an additional $3,000, bringing the total to $10,000 for individuals building a new home. Assistance for established properties meanwhile is only $3,000 total. To qualify for a FHOG applicants must meet certain eligibility guidelines (<http://www.easystarthomes.com.au/get-started>).

Easystart Homes not only provides clients with beautifully constructed properties, but is also equipped to offer assistance throughout the design, purchasing, and building process. Their expert staff can help buyers assemble their application materials and even assist with obtaining financing.

"We offer a full-service home buying experience here at Easystart. We have years of experience in helping new home buyers achieve their dreams of homeownership, and can offer assistance with everything from budgeting to design to the smallest finishing touches during the construction process," Muller said.

The first home buyer can now receive up to $10,000 in financial assistance.
