CHICAGO, IL, USA, March 26, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Corboy & Demetrio has filed a negligence lawsuit on behalf of a passenger who was injured when a Chicago Transit Authority Blue Line train derailed at O'Hare International Airport on Monday.

The plaintiff is 23-year-old Dalila Jefferson, a security officer who was heading to her job at O'Hare and was riding in the first car, which climbed the escalator after jumping the tracks.

"Dalila was about to get off the train in the first car when she was catapulted forward as the car went up the escalator. She had to be extracted from the car, and is experiencing severe pain from a broken foot, as well as neck and back injuries," said Corboy & Demetrio attorney Matthew T. Jenkins who is representing Jefferson.

"It's clear there was a failure on multiple levels. We hope this lawsuit helps bring answers as to how this could happen and to prevent it from happening again," Jenkins said. "Millions of people ride the CTA to and from work and they deserve to feel safe," he added.
