

GO Together by Moikka Company creates iPhone app to match Pokémon GO players by rank and team. No more playing alone

A new iPhone app creates a place for Pokémon players to become friends, see each other, search for new friends, and play with players.

DALLAS, TEXAS, USA, September 23, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- GO Together creates socialization of Pokémon players. No more playing alone!

Go Together has just released in the iPhone App store. Go Together is a socialization tool for Pokémon players to find each other and connect with each other. You can find people by rank or team from your neighborhood or all over the world.

Upon opening the app, it only allows a Facebook login, this is for users to feel safe and like they have some verifiable person with an account they are talking with. Facebook also pulls the gender and age of players from Facebook but allows them to enter in their Pokémon ranking, team and a description as well as screenshots of Pokémon.

The app was developed with social connection in mind. Many times there are groups of players who maybe want to meet each other and this allows a location based and check-in based tool to meet people around you if you both want to meet each other by both "liking" the other.

"We wanted to address loneliness and give people an easy way to connect in a low pressure way" said co-founder Michael Curylo. "So when people are hanging around a Pokémon Gym area, and they open our app, they might be able to match with someone right around them which could create some cool collaborative opportunities from meeting someone with a higher ranking than you to making a new friend". The founders wanted this to be more of an app focused on friendship and playing a game together rather than romantic connection.

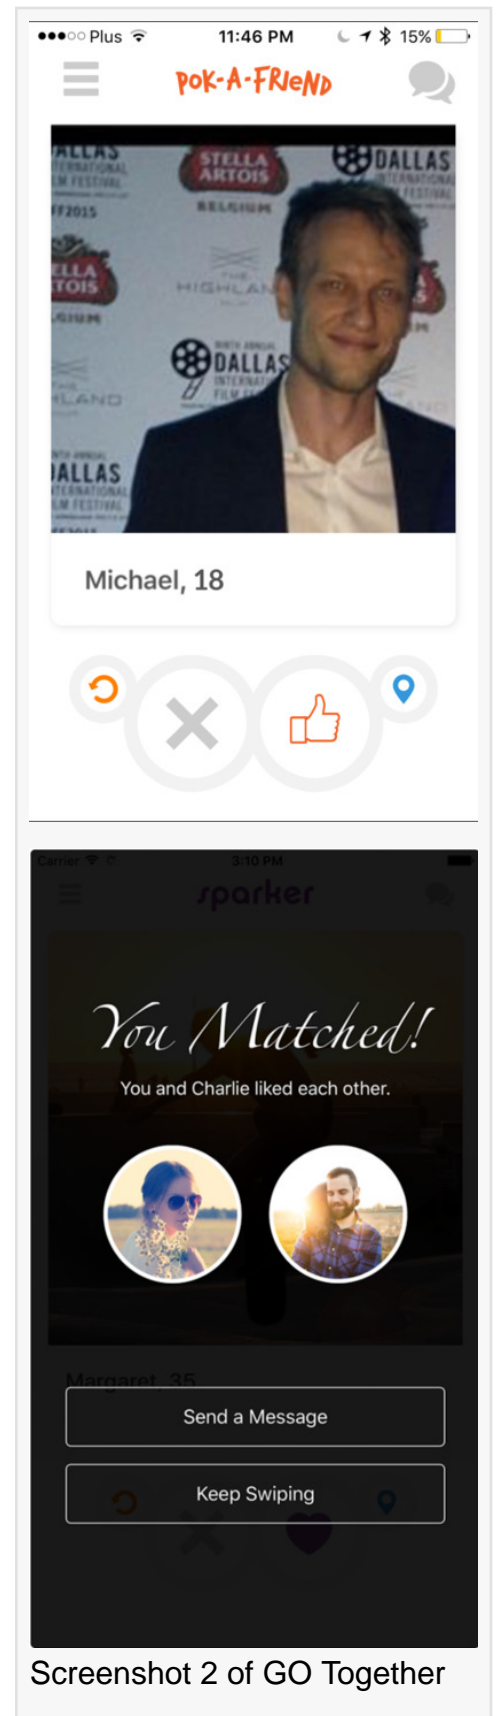

The App Can be downloaded from the App store <https://appsto.re/us/foteeb.i>
