The Business Research Company

There has been a shift in music streaming from analog to digital. It has helped operators to cut costs by replacing the traditional operational systems using stations or satellites with internet. Also, people are shifting towards streaming music services by using online subscriptions and ad plans and free services. For instance, Beats 1 digital radio station was launched by Apple music. Spotify and Pandora are the other popular radio stations. Internet publishing and broadcasting companies are offering music streaming via internet that can be further be used by music companies to enhance user experience and tap millions of subscribers.

According to Market research firm The Business Research Company's Media Consultant, Abdul Wasay, people are changing the way to connect and communicate with each other. They are using social platforms to share and be in touch with their family and friends. Social platforms are also acting as a source of entertainment to its users. Increasing time spent on social networking sites is boosting the growth of the website market.

The Business Research Company expects the website market to grow to $303 billion in 2019 The Americas was the largest geographic market in the website market in 2015, accounting for two-fifths of the global market.
