LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, November 28, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Over the last 24 months, we have witnessed market growth and new logistics hubs established around the globe by forwarders and distributors, in order to service and support a more round-the-clock global network for pharmaceutical product supply. Nonetheless, challenges remain with the increasingly fragile biologics product and tightened GDP regulations.

Just a fortnight remains until the SMi Group opens their doors to host the 11th annual conference on Cold Chain Distribution. This year's event will bring over 120 attendees from all over the world including senior representatives from big pharma, biotech and service providers with responsibilities in supply chain, cold chain, logistics, distribution, packaging, operations, production, manufacturing, QA and QC from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Ireland, Israel, Netherlands, Switzerland, United Kingdom and other countries to keep abreast of cold chain distribution developments!
