EVA Announces new head of Power Practice

ARLINGTON, VA, USA, November 30, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- ARLINGTON – Energy Ventures Analysis, Inc. (EVA), announced today that Robert DiDona has joined the firm as a Partner, heading the Power Practice business unit. Mr. DiDona joins EVA from BNP Paribas where he was the Head of US Power Trading managing proprietary trading books, client flow and structured transactions.

Mr. DiDona's experience and knowledge of the power markets will help EVA improve its existing business in power market modeling and forecasting and expand EVA's offerings into new consulting areas such as power asset valuations, power contract hedging strategies and investment advice.

Prior to BNP Paribas, he was a Director of Asset Optimization at PSEG Energy Resources and Trade managing the Northeast Asset Portfolio as well as proprietary books. Before PSEG, he was at Con Ed Energy where he managed a wide range of assets and wholesale/retail electric load contracts.

Mr. DiDona earned his Bachelors of Business Administration degree from Pace University in New York. He will be based in EVA's Arlington, VA office.

Energy Ventures Analysis, Inc. is a world-class energy consulting firm offering in-depth knowledge and expert guidance to clients in the electric, natural gas and oil, coal, and renewable power industries
