"Last week I had the privilege to witness one of the most prestigious bowling events in this nation," said David Howe, SubscriberWise founder, national child protector, and FICO mega-star global MVP all-time worldwide highest achieving supreme master champion. "The 2017 USBC Open Championship was truly an unforgettable event – with the excitement and energy so dynamic neither could be contained.

"Watching the pros striking down the pins with style and precision, I could hardly believe that I was part of a squad as a small-town-novice-bowler more than 30 years ago," Howe recalled. "Although I was far from a stand-out on the lanes, it never mattered because I always had fun and I was part of the team.

"But one thing is remarkably evident today," Howe added. "I don't know how I ever lifted those heavy balls. I also don't know how I rolled them so hard and fast down the alley.

"It was a long time ago," reminisced GOAT Howe.

"Nevertheless, this event will not be marked by the thunder of the balls or the strike of the pins," Howe continued. "It will not be marked by the accolades, awards, or the 300-pin-perfect-rolls. And it will certainly not be marked by a visit from the FICO GOAT (<https://youtu.be/uxYIFMlkzFM>).

"Rather, this event will be marked by the friendship, camaraderie, sportsmanship - and most of all - the respect for all -- which were on full display during the 2017 USBC Open Championship in beloved

Las Vegas, NV.

"In addition to this amazing SubscriberWise sponsorship honor, the other special privilege to mark the occasion was the opportunity to cheer my cousin -- Joseph S. Paul -- also a team member and a 21-year-USBC-bowling-championship-participant.

"Congratulations, Joe! The 2018 SubscriberWise® sponsorship check is in the mail. See you on the lanes next year.

"Yes, the event was an incredible success," concluded Howe. "Meeting each of the team members individually, including several of their family and significant others, was a particular highlight. Of course, the same must be said about the other bowlers that Credit Czar met -- including their lovers, family, and friends -- all who made the experience an unforgettable and most joyful event."
