Market Research Analysis:

Pharmaceutical industry is expected to be fastest growing segment in intelligent packaging. The market opportunities will be driven by increasing health care needs of the aging population, the increasing demand of temperature sensitive biotechnology drugs in the product mix. The product demand could be hampered due to the huge investments in R&D and the increased cost of raw materials. Various new players have entered the market because of shift from traditional to intelligent wrapping system. All this have pushed participants to develop efficient and cost-effective wrapping solutions.

The food & beverage sector is also experiencing a growth due to the increasing requirement of longer shelf life for packaged fresh foods and processed foods along with the increasing importance of packaging in food safety. Color indicating features, TTIs and smartphone-enabled barcodes are new ways of intelligent packaging, especially for beverages.
