Essentially the state population of Texas has tripled since 1960 and it would be impossible to have had this type of growth without construction or skilled trades workers. Prior to the mid 1980's there were essentially no protections for construction workers or skilled tradesmen in Texas from getting exposed to asbestos. Asbestos exposure in Texas is probably still occurring today in the construction industry in home remodels and small commercial tenant improvement projects.

According to the group, "We know Texas and the types of construction or skilled trades workers that were required to build the skylines of Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Austin, and El Paso, or residential neighborhoods. We also know people like this were exposed to asbestos. If you are a construction worker or skilled tradesman with mesothelioma in Texas please call us at 800-714-0303 to ensure you hire the nation's top lawyers for mesothelioma compensation. As it turns out some of these legal experts are based in Texas as we would like to explain. Please don't shortchange yourself when it comes to mesothelioma compensation."
