

Vigilant Personal Protection Systems Launches Commercial Sales Division For Wholesale Personal Alarm Panic Button Orders

Vigilant wholesale sales department to help hotel owners and municipal governments meet new housekeeper requirements for personal protection systems

TAMPA, FLORIDA (FL), USA, August 29, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In order to meet increasing demand for commercial sales in light of recent legislation passed by several State and local government agencies, Vigilant Personal Protection Systems has established a commercial sales division to handle bulk orders of personal protection alarms.

Vigilant Personal Protection Systems, the manufacturer of both Mace and Vigilant branded personal alarms, is the largest alarm provider to government and commercial institutions in the United States. Now, Vigilant has formalized the process of servicing hospitals, hotels, prisons, schools, prisons and other law enforcement agencies.

"As more cities enact legislation similar to the housekeeper protection provisions we have seen codified in Seattle Initiative 124 and elsewhere across the country" said David Happe of Vigilant, "we've launched a special support team that will quickly and easily provide panic button alarms and support to buyers across the country who need Vigilant or Mace alarms to comply with laws that protect hotel house keepers and other workers. Vigilant sells alarms to several state governments, all four branches of the United States military, and dozens of law enforcement and correctional institutions nationwide. We're thankful and fully prepared to help the people who spend their lives helping people. From house keepers to the men and women of the United States military, Vigilant and Mace panic buttons are ready to be a vital part of your team's every day personal safety."
