SUMMARY

WiseGuyReports published new report, titled "The Baby Food Sector in South Africa".

"The Baby Food Sector in South Africa 2017", is an analytical report by which provides extensive and highly detailed current and future market trends in the South African market.

The South African baby food market has remained vibrant despite a poor economic climate over the last three years. Total consumption has also risen in all sectors, except drinks. In 2016, retail sales are up by 88.4% on 2010 and in terms of volume, total consumption stood at 7.4% higher than in 2010. Milks, however, remains the dominant product group, accounting for 69% of retail sales and 52% of volume in 2016. Baby food is distributed through a variety of outlets in South Africa and there are no restrictions on its sale. The market is expected to increase by 54.5% in current price terms and 4.1% in volume terms between 2016 and 2022. Consumption will be constrained by the expected fall in the number of live births, but it should be encouraged by growing incomes and product innovation.
