

PlayerAuctions' 3 Reasons to Watch League of Legends Worlds 2017

Teams to look out attending League of Legends Worlds 2017 championships

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, October 11, 2017 /EINPresswire.com/ -- 1. The Money

We remember the time when Riot put up a one million dollar cash prize for the first time several years back in League of Legends. It was a crazy amount of money to put up for a video game competition at the time. In fact, it appeared to be an act of desperation to break off their incoming competitor, Dota 2. Now, that sort of money is chicken feed compared to the $6.7 million that was up for grabs in 2016. Every year, the cash prize gets larger, and Worlds will probably try to surpass the $25 million prize pool put up by Dota 2 for The International. There can't be anyone anymore who can honestly say that you won't ever get rich playing video games.

2. The Passion

Sure, it's neat to be able to buy your mansion on a beach in Morocco, but the 16 teams are competing in Worlds are battling for glory. Winning Worlds is like winning the SuperBowl, the FA Cup, or the NBA Finals. The 16 teams are trying to prove that they're the absolute best in LoL and at what they do. Rivalries flare up everywhere, trash talk happens between these young folks, and losing at Worlds could mean losing it all for some of the players. Also, there's SK Telecom T1, the South Korean team that has won Worlds three times. In fact, they look just as strong as the day they first debuted, especially with the return of Faker, who's known as the greatest player in the world. Imagine taking down SK and Faker on the same day! Yes, that would be a glorious event talked about for years within the gaming community.

3. The Excitement

If you're reading this article, then you are, without a doubt, a gamer. Every gamer loves the thrill of virtual combat, whether in MMOs via PvE or PvP, shooter matches in Overwatch or CS:GO, and even the humble excitement of avoiding Minecraft creepers. Worlds is the stage to one of the best gaming experiences you will ever see. The sights, sounds, hype, and most importantly, the elite plays these 16 teams can pull out of thin air will truly keep you on the edge of your seat. Heck, even if you're not a LoL player, you'll find it quite surprising that LoL is an amazing spectator sport even for the uninitiated. There's no real way to show how truly adrenaline-pumping LoL competitions can be. Give Worlds a shot!
