

CBMJ – LoudMouth News Gets Boost from Sessions Marijuana Reversal – Cannabis Advertisers Grateful of Legal Designation

LoudMouth News gets serious boost following the U.S. Attorney Generals' decision to reverse federal protections for states opting to liberalize marijuana laws.

SEATTLE, WA, USA, January 9, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Canna Broadcast Media/LoudMouth News (OTCPK:CBMJ) <https://cannabroadcastmedia.com/> a premier cannabis broadcasting company's "LoudMouth News" www.loudmouthnews.com got as serious boost following the U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions' decision last week to toss aside federal protections for states opting to liberalize marijuana laws rescinding what is known as the Cole Memo.

The reversal has caused many investors, banks, and other institutions to retreat from involving themselves with Cannabis companies. Particularly those whom conduct business that is illegal under federal law. However, companies that support those companies can also be effected as well. This extends into real estate investment, lighting, insurance, financing, and beyond. Just as the wave of optimism in the marijuana market and its seemingly unstoppable movement to legalize state by state nationally was showing signs of loosening regulations, the decision by the U.S. Attorney General has also caused an about face by most major media companies to reject advertising by Cannabis companies and those producing or selling federally illegal marijuana products.

Although many may view the reversal of the Cole Memo as a setback to the industry, it strengthens our position at CBJM as the premiere source for cannabis companies to be able to get the word out.”
