

Maryrose Petrizzo to be Featured on CUTV News Radio

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE, UNITED STATES, February 28, 2018

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Maryrose is a seasoned quality assurance professional and owner of Clinical Quality Assured a consulting business that provides good clinical practice expertise for the conduct of clinical trials within the pharmaceutical, biopharmaceutical, and medical device industries since 2015.

“Its focus is basically the subject safety and data integrity of experimental drugs investigated in humans,” says Maryrose. “There are numerous regulations and as an expert in these regulations it should be noted there is not just one method to comply which gives a lot of flexibility to companies and I assist them in recognizing the balance between complying with the spirit of the regulation versus the letter of the law, while maintaining business needs.”

Working as a chemist, Maryrose started her career in the environmental compliance area before transitioning into pharmaceutical compliance and when she began auditing clinical trials she thoroughly enjoyed the challenge and how every new drug and study is different and distinctive.

“It takes a minimum of ten years to get a new drug approved and there’s millions of dollars invested to conduct these studies,” says Maryrose. “However, its critical to conduct these clinical trials since we urgently need pharmaceuticals or devices to aid us with the maintenance of our health.”

Regulations have evolved tremendously in the 22 years Maryrose have been in the pharmaceutical industry with an ever increasing emphasis on safety.

“Don’t be afraid of clinical trials because of the exemplary way they are designed and regulated,” says Maryrose. “Clinical trials is one of the best tools for managing diseases because, you are monitored so very closely. and the quality of the health care and safety of the patients is generally exceptional, so I highly recommend anyone to get involved in a clinical trial so we can continue producing high quality drugs.”

Aside from her well regarded work conducting clinical trials Maryrose is also an ordained Roman Catholic Woman Priest.

“There are approximately three hundred ordained women throughout the world and although we are not recognized by the Vatican because they don’t believe women should be ordained,” explains Mary Rose. “But we have been called to serve by the community and unlike male priest we have no hierarchy when we get ordained we don’t take vows of obedience to the bishop like the men do. Consequently our communities are all equal with the priest being just one member of the community mainly present for spiritual leadership and everyone in the parish having a responsibility and accountability within the community.”

Maryrose was innately drawn to ministry since she was a teenager becoming active in the church and felt so thoroughly fulfilled from her work she later obtained her Masters in Pastoral care and counseling that was completely life changing.

“I must support myself, so I am a working priest unlike the institutional church, the male priests are given salary, health care benefits, and homes to live in but I pay all that myself,” says Maryrose. “I am so fortunate and extremely blessed to have a career that that affords me the opportunity to serve others in ministry.”

CUTV news will feature Maryrose Petrizzo in an interview with Jim Masters March 2nd at 10 a.m. EST.
