

Heather Roan Robbins to be Featured on CUTV News Radio

RONAN, MONTANA, UNITED STATES, June 13, 2018 /EINPresswire.com/ -- We have more choice over how we live our lives than we believe, but the closer a problem is to our heart, the harder it is to separate out our hopes and fears from our rational thought. We all exhibit common patterns that we live out over and over again, so until we bring our consciousness to bear and shift that energy in a different direction, we will continue to repeat our patterns.

So how do we find that balance? To wonder is to begin to understand. However skeptical one may be of the metaphysical realm, it offers a wonderful scaffolding for the process of self-reflection and spiritual growth.

Heather Roan Robbins is an astrologer and interfaith minister specializing in intuition development. Intuition connects our intelligence, our instincts and our psychic information.

"It's all about trust," says Robbins, "My job is to help my clients learn to trust their intuition by clearing out what's gotten in the way of it."

Robbins says her clients are often trying to make a decision, but feel the problems of their lives have a more spiritual grounding, and they're trying to get at the root of it or find a way that is closer to their soul's path to move forward.

"Often if we're not making the change that we want to, we start getting more and more frustrated and accident-prone," says Robbins, "but if we do what we really need to do, listen to that Mars in us that wants to make a change, we become our own musical instrument and we can play our song however we like."

That's why Robbins says she gravitates toward astrology: there is a sense of interrelatedness. We can't choose those patterns, but we can choose how we work with those patterns.

"I don't believe in the inevitability of any astrological process or any predestination in any form," says Robbins, "but astrology can kind of give us the lay of the land, what our core issues are, and give us some hints about how to live them out in the best possible way."

CUTV News Radio will feature Heather Roan Robbins in an interview with Jim Masters on June 13th at 11am EDT.
